Renewal

To avoid any disruption of service your subscription will automatically renew at the end of each subscription period.

Where we are unable to renew your subscription, we will automatically suspend or downgrade your account and notify you via email and allow you to update your payment details or take out a new subscription. Please note in this instance you may lose any previous discount or special offer related to your previous subscription.

Where you are offered a free-trial period you will receive an email notification no less than seven days before your free-period is due to end and convert into a paid subscription. Please note this does not apply where you are merely offered a discounted or offer-period paid-for subscription at a reduced rate that subsequently converts to a subscription at one of our full standard subscription rates.

Discounted or offer-period paid-for subscription at a reduced rate are provided at our absolute discretion and can be renewed, amended or revoked at any time.

Cancellation and refunds

You have a right to cancel your subscription and obtain a refund for any unused subscription (subject to and in accordance with the Consumer Contracts (Information, Cancellation and Additional Charges) Regulations 2013).

In the case of a defective site we reserve the right to offer an additional free period of subscription or issue a partial or full refund at our sole discretion.

Where a refund is offered and accepted by you it will be made within seven working days of receiving your acceptance of a refund.

Once a refund is issued your subscription will be terminated. Any content or data in your account will be deleted.
